(From the Detroit Advertiser.) We have already stated that we expected to shortly come into possession of some facts re-lating to the operations of the infamous Dr. Luke P. Blackburn, who acting in the interest of the late rebel government, was engaged in 1864, at Bermuda, in infecting clothing with yellow fever and small-pox, with the intention of introducing those contagious disorders into the Union army and into the cities of the North. The data in our possession shows that the late operations of Dr. Blackburn were intended to repeat, on a large scale, the attempt of a simifar nature which we shall now expose, and which only met with partial success.

Dr. Luke P. Blackburn was Confederate agent of the State of Mississippi. He seems to have originated the flendish plot which he was the principal agent in carrying out, and to have communicated it to ex. Governor Mc Willey, of Mississippi, who, in 1863, gave Dr. Blackburn an order for several hundred bales of cotton, which he was to sell, and employ the proceeds in consummating his scheme. The Doctor endeavored unsuccessfully to sell his cotton at Mobile, and subsequently at other points, and finally at Augusta, Ga., where we enderstand it now is. He went to Richmond and laid his scheme before the rebel government, but, we are informed, did not obtain ofncial sanction, although he was encouraged by leading retels to persevere in his plans.

How Dr. Blackburn got into Canada we know not; but in the fall of 1863 we find him a guest at Queen's Hotel, Toronto, on the lookout for some one to help to carry out his plot. About this time one J. W. Harris, or a man known by this name, but whose true name we have now before us, came to Toronto from Helena, Ark., whence he had been expelled by the occupation of that place by Union troops; or rather from St. Louis, where he resided for a time after leaving Helena. He was desperate by losses of property and violent treatment of his family by our army, and wrote to H. O. Slaughter, rebel enlisting agent at Montreal, expressing a desire to go into the rebel army. Slaughter brought his case to the attention of Rev. Dr. Stuart Robinson, of Kentucky, then at Toronto, and this rebel parson introduced him to Dr. Blackburn; Harris was then working as a shoemaker in Toronto: Dr. B. was then stopping at the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, and there Harris had his first interview with him; at first he pretended to be a recruiting agent, and told Harris he would send him South in company with some new recruits, but finally broached his scheme, and flattering his victim for his courage and sagacity, he enlisted his services, promising him $60,000 from the rebel government in case he succeeded; although Harris had succeeded indifferently in seeking the endorsement of the rebel government at Richmond, he was more fortunate with the agents of that government in Canada, who entered at once into his project, supplied him with money, and gave him their approval; Harris gives the following account of his interview with Doctor Blackburn. when the latter lold him in what capacity he wanted his services; after going into a private room, Dr. B. said:

"You want to serve the Confederacy ! I said I did. I can tell you how you can do more than to join Lee's army with 100,000 men-can add more fame to your name than General Lee. 1 said, what is 't! He said: I have tried to get some one to on an expedition, but can't get the right kind of stuff: can I place confidence in you! I said yes. He asked me, are you a Free Mason? I said no. He said, well, I am; here is the right hand of friendship of a Free Mason, which will never degrade or betray; will you accept it in friendship! I want you to kill and destroy as many of the Northern army or the people of the place you go to as you can; it is to consist of cases of goods, shirts, pants, etc.; they will have yellow fever in them. I said, I will go; he said, I will guarantee to you, if you do this, that you will have $60,000, and this should be half of

Dr. B. I met, and also - McGregor, for merly of New Orleans, jewelry dealer: also - Hammock from New Orleans; I saw them all together at the Halifax Hotel, at Dr. B.'s room; Doctor said he had the goods ready; wanted me to go to Washington, Norfolk and Newbern, or if I could not get there to send them in some way; said I would have to make an arrangement with some vessel Captain to smaggle the goods to Boston as they could not be inspected by Custom House officers; all three were together; that day I went down to the steamer and took off the trunks in company with the first mate of the steamer, Hill, who smuggled the goods into Halifax. They were hid in the hold by Hill; he said he had a hard time to get them in; I took the trunks, eight in number, to the Farmer's Hotel, the hotel wagon took them up; John Doran, son of the proprietor, drove the team; he did not know the contents; it was in the evening; they were taken to a private room in the hotel on the first fleor on the right hand side of the Mr. Doran's private sitting room; no one in the hotel kne wanything about it; I said I was going on an expedition, but did not say what; I took three trunks of Dr. B.'s order to Halifax Hotel; there was also a very nice valise with some very elegant shirts and other things infected with fever or small pox, which they wanted me to take with a letter as a present to President Lincoln. I refused to undertake that, and the value was left with Br. Blackburn, and I do not know what became of it. Dr. B. sent Hill with me to some of the captains he knew to have the trunks smuggled into Boston; the first vessel we went to was Captain McGriffin's; don't know the name of ship; he refused; then to the bark Halifax, Capt. John O'Brien, who was a Newfoundland man; he agreed to smuggle them in; I was to give $20 in gold to him fer doing it; young Doran took down the five trunks; I went on board same day, and the vessel left in the evening; it was on the 24th or 25th of July; she arrived at Boston some seven days after, about the 3d of August: I went to the Parker House; I went all the time by name of J. W. Harris; the cus-tom-house officer came on beard, but aid not find the goods; there was on the side of the porter's door moveable panels, which slid along, and behind which the trunks were stowed; they were used for smuggling; he had other goods amuggled there, stopped at wharf at foot of Fort Hill, Grand street; don't remember the full consignees of vessels: it was Hollman and some one else; tweep office at foot of Fort Hill; I got an express wagon and took them to the express office in State street, and and had them sent to Philadelphia, to be left till called for, and took a receipt for same. Harris went to New York, Philadelphia and Baitimore in succession. At Philadelphia he had the infected goods sent to the American Hotel, where he stopped. At Baltimore a rela-tive attempted to dissuade him from the enterprise, without success. He here sorted the goods at the Fountain House, smoothing them out so that they would sell better. Being short out so that they would sell better. Being short of money, he now returned to Toronto, where he arrived about August 5th. Dr. Blackburn was at Niagara Falls in company with Mc-Gregor, Holcomb, C. C. Clay and S. S. Preston. Dr. B. gave him, on his application, $100 in gold, which he borrowed of Preston. Mc-Gregor, now in Havana, greatly encouraged him, and told him his fortune was made, and that on his feturn he would surely receive $60,000, and that he would give him an interest in his business, a large jewen; store in New Orleans. Harris soon lett and returned 2 Baltimore. We resume Harris' statement in his own words: After my return from Toronto and Niagara

I took five of the eight trunks that I had repacked and took them to Wall & Co., auction. eers, corner Pennsylvania avenue and 9th street, Washington; I have the receipt and letter received from them at Toronto by me in relation to sale; they transmitted the money, some $28 beside expenses; I got $100 advance on the things; they sold them, but I don't know how; I went from Washington back to Baltimore. [Harris attempted to accompany the goods to Norfolk and Newbern, but was prevented by

Gen. Butler's non-intercourse orders, but he made arrangements with a sutler named Myers, of Boston, to sell the small trunk in Norfolk and the other two in Newbern, the pro-ceeds to be forwarded to Baltimore. He gave as a reason for sales at the special points, that he wanted to test the market, and if these went off well he would have many more to sell. One trank contained 70 shirts and 6 coats; the others 150 and 25 shirts respectively. After this arrangement with the sutler Harris returned to Toronto. Dr. Blackburn telegraphed from Montreal to meet him there, and he set out for that city. "At Hamilton Depot," says Harris, "I met Holcomb and C. C. Clay. They shook hands with me, and congratulated me or making an independent fortune. Holcomb said the Confederate Government had appropriated $200,000 to carry the expedition through " We again quote Harris' narrative:] I did not go to Montreal, because I had no money; I so wrote Blackburn; he came up on the next train. This was on the 16th August; I got home on the 13th; he came to my house about twelve p. m., with Bennet H. Young, now a prisoner at Toronto; he knocked and I looked out through the curtain; Blackburn said: "Harris open the door; you are like all men who have been doing wrong, afraid that the devil is after you." I went down; he was glad I was back; if they had caught me I would have been hung sure; asked if the big trunk No. 2 was sold in Washington; he said that wis right for it would kill all in town; I told him all I had done freely; he said that he was satisfied; I then told him my family was suffering for money; said he would go that night and make arrangements with Jake Thompson to draw what money I needed; he was going next morning to Bermuda to take care of the yellow fover there for the English Government; he fever there for the English Government; he then went away, and I saw no more of him antil he returned from Bermuda, the last part of October, after, I went to Thompson next morning and asked for money; he said Dr. Blackburn had authorized him to pay mesome money when I had a bill of sale showing I had disposed of the goods; he then gave me $50 to pay rent, and get out of pawn my wife's dresses; week or ten days after got bill of sale from Wall & Oo, and accredited sales; Thompson upon seeing these gave me $50; these payments were the first money; the second by check on the Ontario Bank; this check was in the beginning of Sptember; it was to Godfrey J. Hyams; after this I got no money; I wrote several times to Dr. Blackburn, but he did not answer me: I at last went to Montreal to carry answer me; I at last went to Montreal to carry the commission of Young for evidence in the trial; Garry McDonald gave it to me; he got it of Thompson; I gave the commission to Mc-Chesney, reporter for Telegraph newspaper at Montreal; I then saw Dr. Blackburn and asked nim for money; he laughed at me; said he had none to give me.

I heard Thompson, Cleary, Clay, Blackburn. McDonald, etc., etc., speak of the yellow fever in Newbern; wonder why it did not take in the other places.

Of course Harris was duped. He got no more money and soon became disgusted with his employers. How he was induced to make the statements we have given, which come to us from a responsible citizen of Michigan, who took them down from his own lips, we cannot say. Nor can we say how true the details he gives are. We know of circumstances which corroborate his astounding narrative, and think that it is mainly true. The public knows that Dr. Blackburn has been on trial in Bermada for the very atrocities here detailed, and that the evidence is strong against him.

THE REVIEW. Officers Permitted to Visit Washington. War Department, Adjutant General's Office,)

Washington, May 19, 1865. In order to give officers of the army an opportunity to witness the review of the armies on the 23d and 24th inst., the regulation prohibiting officers from visiting the Capitol without special authority from the War Department, is suspended, to include the 30th instant. By order of the Secretary of War.

E. D. TOWNSEND, Assistant Adjutant General. GRAND REVIEW. Details of Tuesday's Parade.

HADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC,) May 20, 1865. neral Orders No. 27. An accordance with instructions received from headquarters armies of the United Staces, the Army of the Potomac will be passed in review, through Washington city, on Tuesday, the 23d inst., in the following

1st. Headquarters Army of the Potomac and escort. 2d. Cavalry corps, Major General Merritt commanding.

3d. Provost Marshal General's brigade,
Brevet Brigadier General Macy commanding.

4th. Lugineer brigade, Brigadier General Benham, commanding.
5th. 9th corps, Major General Parke commanding, with division of 19th corps, Brigadier General Dwight commanding. 6th. 5th corps, Brevet Major General Griffin commanding. 7th. 2d corps, Major General Humphreys commanding. The artillery of each corps will follow its corps, except that of the 2d corps, which will follow the leading division of its corps. The cavalry corps will form on Maryland avenue, with the head of the column abreast of the northern entrance to the Capitol, prepared to move precisely at 90'clock a. m. The 9th corps will be marched across Long Bridge on the 22d instant, and will bivous on ground east of the Capitol, to be designated to its commanding general. It will form on East Capitol street, the head of the column on First street east, at 6 o'clock a. m , on the 23d Instant, prepared to follow the cavalry.

At 4 o'clock a m., of the 23d inst, the 5th will be put in motion, and crossing Long Bridge and the canal bridge on Maryland avenue, will then move easterly, sufficiently far to countermarch, and to form on Pennsylvania avenue, with the head of the celumn on First street east, prepared to follow the Ninth corps.

The Engineer Brigade, and the Provost Marshal General's brigade, will bivouac on the evening of the 22d inst., near the Long Bridge, and moving over that and the canal bridge, on Maryland avenue, at 3 o'clock a. m., on the 23d inst, will take position on A street north, prepared to follow the cavalry. The 2d corps will move at 7 o'clock a. m., on the 23d inst., and crossing Long Bridge and the Canal Bridge, on Maryland avenue, will form column on the streets of the Fifth Ward, south of Pennsylvania avenue, prepared to follow the 5th corps, on First street east.

The formation of the column will be as designated in Special Orders No. 239, current series, Headquarters of the Army, Adjutant General's office, May 18, 1865, by companies, closed in mass, with shortened intervals between regiments, brigades, and divisions. For the sake of uniformity, and to pass narrow portions of the street, the company front will be, throughout the army, twenty files. Brig-ade commanders will see that the regimental commanders adopt this formation. The number of companies must depend upon the number of men in the regiment. Each brigade of infantry will be accompanied by six ambulances passing three abreast.

Mounted officers only will salute in passing the reviewing officer. The staff of the Major General commanding, after passing the reviewing officer, will b. formed on the street to be hereafter designated. Corps commanders will direct their staff officers, after passing the reviewing officer, to continue in lead of their respective corps, over the route to be hereinafter designated. The cadence step will be taken from the Capitol until after passing Seventeenth street. Arms will be carried at right shoulder shift from the Capitol to the front of the State De-

After passing the reviewing officer and Seventeenth street, the cavalry moving briskly for 600 or 800 yards, will proceed to the Circle and thence through the street north to its camp

The Frovost Marshal General's brigade, the Engineer brigade, and the 5th corps will march via Bridge street, Georgetown, and the Aqueduct bridge, to Ball's Cross roads, and thence to their camps.

The 9th and 2d corps will move across the Potomac, via the pontoon bridge at the foot of High street, Georgetown, turning off at the Circle, throught K street, and taking the lower road, past Arlington House, to Columbia pike, will move to their camps. Corps commanders will see that after passing Seventeenth street, the gait be increased by regiments, and will take advantage of any of the side streets to mass their commands or portions of them. Should the column moving past the reviewing officer be checked, they will employ their staff officers to prevent any recurrence of the kind, and will send officers in advance to examine well the ground near the bridges available for placing their corps in mass.

When practicable, batteries will form battery The unarmed men of the several commands. and such men as may be excused from duty by the medical officers, will constitute the guard to be left in camp. By command of Major General Meade: Gro. D. Ruggles. Assistant Adjutant General.
